Don't Spoil Your Hair
By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

peace, and will relinquish no effort to bring the nations of the world into such fellowship, not in the surrender of national sovereignty but in the advancement of human activities, and the compensations of peaceful achievement.

In the national referendum to which I have adverted we pledged our efforts toward such association, and the pledge will be faithfully kept. In the plight of policy and performance, we told the American people we meant to seek an early establishment of peace. The United States alone among the allied and associated powers continues in a technical state of war against the Central Powers of Europe. This anomalous condition ought not to be permitted to continue. To establish the state of technical peace without further delay, should approve a declaratory resolution by Congress to that effect, with the qualifications essential to protect all our rights. Such action would be the simplest keeping of faith with ourselves, and could in no sense be construed as a desertion of those with whom we shared our sacrifices in war, for these powers are already at peace.

AMERICA CRAVES PEACE.

Such a resolution should undertake to do no more than thus to declare the state of peace, which all America craves. It must add no difficulty in effecting, with just reparations, the restoration for which all Europe yearns, and upon which the world's recovery must be founded. Neither former enemy nor ally can mistake America's position, because our attitude as to responsibility for the war and the necessity for just reparations already has had formal and very earnest expression. It would be unwise to undertake to make a statement of future policy with respect to European affairs in such a declaration of a state of peace. In correcting the failure of the Executive in negotiating the most important treaty in the history of the nation, to recognize the constitutional powers of the Senate we would go to the other extreme, equally objectionable, if Congress or the Senate should assume the function of the Executive. Our highest duty is the preservation of the constituted powers of each, and the promotion of the spirit of co-operation so essential to our common welfare.

It would be idle to declare for separate treaties of peace with the Central Powers on the assumption that these alone would be adequate, because the situation is so involved that our peace engagements can not ignore the Old World relationship needs the settlements already effected, it is desirable to do so in preserving our own rights and contracting our future relationships.

The wiser course would seem to be the acceptance of the confirmation of our rights and interests as already provided and to engage under the existing treaty, assuming of course, that this can be satisfactorily accomplished by such explicit reservations and modifications as will secure our absolute freedom from inadvisable commitments and safeguard all our essential interests.

Neither Congress nor the people needs any assurance that a request to negotiate needed treaties of peace would be superfluous and unnecessary as it is technically ineffective, and I know in my own heart there is none who would wish to embarrass the Executive in the performance of his duty when we are all so eager to turn disappointment and delay into gratifying accomplishment.

CIVILIZATION SUFFERING.

Problems relating to our foreign relations bear upon the present and the future, and are of such a nature that the all important future must be deliberately considered, with greater concern than mere immediate relief from unhappy conditions. We have witnessed, yea, we have participated in the supremely tragic episode of war, but our deeper concern is in the continuing life of nations and the development of civilization. We must not allow our vision to be impaired by the conflict among ourselves. The weariness at home and the disappointment to the world have been compensated in the proof that this Republic will surrender none of the heritage of nationality, but our rights in international relationship have not been asserted. They require establishment in compacts of amity; our part in readjustment and restoration can not be ignored, and must be defined.

With the supergoverning league definitely rejected and with the world so informed, and with the status of peace proclaimed at home we may proceed to negotiate the covenanted relationship so essential to the recognition of all the rights everywhere of our own Nation and play our full part in joining the peoples of the world in the pursuit of peace once more. Our obligations in effecting European tranquility, because of war's involvements, are not less impelling than our part in the war itself. Helpless does not mean resignation, and participation in economic adjustments does not mean sponsorship for treaty commitments which do not concern us, and in which we will have no part.

In an all-impelling wish to do the most and best for our own Republic and maintain its high place among nations, and at the same time make the fullest offering of justice to them, I shall invite in the most practical way the advice of the Senate, after acquainting it with all the conditions to be met and obligations to be charged, along with our own rights to be safeguarded. Prudence in making the program and confident co-operation in making it effective can not lead us far astray. We can render no effective service to humanity until we prove anew our own capacity for co-operation in the co-ordination of powers contemplated in the Constitution, and no covenants which ignore our associations in the war can be made for the future.

More, no helpful society of nations can be founded on justice and committed to peace until the covenanted re-establishing peace are sealed by the nations which were at war. To such accomplishment—to the complete re-establishment of peace and its contracted relationships, to the realization of our aspirations for nations associated for world helpfulness without world government, for world stability on which humanity's hopes are founded, we shall address ourselves, fully mindful of the high privilege and the paramount duty of the United States in this critical period of the world.

SAYS HUBBY FELL FOR WHOLE PACK OF
BEACH VAMPS

As balmy summer breezes blew the tresses of "beach vamps" at the Tidal Basin in a manner calculated to cause the heart of many a ruddy Romeo to palpitate, Archibald Roy Quantrell, according to his wife's suit for absolute divorce filed today in the District Supreme Court, "engaged in many flirtations with various and diverse women."

The city directory gives Quantrell's occupation as a pressman at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and his address at 505 L street northwest. Mrs. Quantrell alleges misconduct and names a co-respondent.

According to Mrs. Quantrell, her husband on one occasion "became infatuated with a private nurse when plaintiff and defendant conducted a boarding house." The wife asks for custody of their three children and alimony. The couple were married December 11, 1907.

dent, to Aid in Work.

District Commissioner Rudolph yesterday called a meeting of prominent citizens of the District, building to organize a Salvation Army advisory board. The board will co-operate with the local Salvation Army authorities in solving its problems and increasing the scope and efficiency of its service.

The following were named members of the new board: Commissioner Rudolph, Henry B. F. MacFarland, Charles S. Mitchell, Avery C. Marks, Jr., Rudolph Jones, Clarence R. Wilson, Earl Godwin, William F. Gude, Charles G. Glover, Jr., Victor B. Deyber, Thomas Hickman, and Newbold Noyes.

Commissioner Rudolph said that since the war the Salvation Army has been appraised at a new value by the country. "Its remarkable usefulness, efficiency and self-sacrifice were discovered during the war by the whole world and it has had nothing but praise ever since," Rudolph said.

MacFarland was named president of the board; Noyes, vice president, and Hickman, treasurer. The advisory board plan has proved successful in the West. In twenty-four States there are over 3,000 boards, with more than 40,000 members actively functioning.

How Does
Every Day Milk Make Housekeeping Easier?

A GAS STOVE is handier to use than a coal stove, because it gives you heat only when you want it.

Every Day is handier than bottled milk because it gives you rich first grade milk just when you want it—and just in the quantity you require.

WHEN you use bottled milk you usually have to buy enough each morning to last all day. Perhaps you buy some expensive cream, too. You must use it up quickly or it will sour. Perhaps you are forced to have rice pudding for dessert when the family is tired of milk dishes and wants something else.

You must buy enough ice each day to keep that whole day's milk and cream supply from becoming sour. All this is making housekeeping harder—and more expensive.

The modern woman has her Every Day Milk on the pantry shelf—and opens a tin whenever she needs milk. She uses it instead of cream for cereals and coffee—as it comes from the tin—because it is so rich. She adds the water we have taken out and uses it for cooking. She doesn't have any left over to worry about. She saves money on milk and ice bills—and she has discovered the way to easier housekeeping.

Your grocer has Every Day for your convenience.
